ELM VALLEY.

[From Our Own Correspondent.]

The oldest settlers all agree that this is the finest fall we have had since they have been in the country.

grain is mostly threshed, and in good order, which partly makes up for the damage done by frost.

Robert Bell has put up a most frame house on a hill. By their state they shall know them. When we see all this going on, with what other indications we have, we cannot help thinking that the long wished-for change is soon to take place.

On Thursday evening last a social, in aid of the Methodist Ministerial fund, was held at the residence of Mr. John Cameron. A company of 15 or 20 gathered and spent a most enjoyable evening. After ample justice was done to the very excellent food provided, the remainder of the evening was spent in listening to a varied program of music, songs and recitations, given by Mrs. J. Cameron, the Misses Cameron, Sparrow, and Cotton, and Messrs. H. Bell, Almond, H. Peters and Grimmer. Several choruses were also furnished by the Grimmer family. Everybody seemed heart making each other happy, and from all appearances succeeded. The proceeds of the evening amounted to $21.55, which is very gratifying indeed. (First credit is due to Mrs. and the Misses Cameron for their efforts in making the social a success.

OAK LAKE.

[From Our Own Correspondent.]

We are all greatly elated by the present fine weather.

We happened to be in Brandon during the week of the 22nd and 23rd, and saw a good deal of the evidence in the case of "Lang vs. Ogilvie Milling Co." It was really amusing to hear how each side in grading differed, which goes far to show that there is something more wanted than the present system.

Building operations are still being carried on with vigor, the latest additions being three stables; and another lot is announced to have been contracted for. We shall then shortly have four hotels, three stores, and an amount of stabling, a rammer are therefore quite safe in coming for far distances to market their grain here, for an accommodation is being given; at the same time our buyers would be none the worse for considering your advice to the Viriden dealers, and the fact that the Viriden Advance, and settle down to something solid by way of grading, prices, etc. In proof of this, we are informed that the grain from the south of this was offered five cents per bushel less than the received for the same class of grain a few days previous, and to show that he was not to be done he returned home with his load; but as long as the present system of grading continues such things will occur.

A Bear Story from Tp. 12.

On Wednesday the 16th inst. Byron Alford and a friend called at Theo. E. Bennett's and asked for the loan of Tom's gun, as they had seen a bear near for their home. Tom happened to be away from home with the gun so they borrowed some forks and went after him. It was rather a misty day but they managed to find his tracks, and with every nerve strung to its utmost tension they crept cautiously towards a straw heap on Sec. 3, Tp. 12. "You go on," said Byron. "No, you," said his friend, so to manage matters amicably they kept abreast. After peering cautiously for a few seconds or minutes (they got mixed up about the time) they saw the old bear and her three cubs—two of the latter barked and gave a white one. They agreed to say nothing about the matter to anyone; but Tom's sow had a narrow escape.

The Characteristic American Book.

Weller's Unabridged Dictionary is now considered, throughout the continent of Europe, not only the authority for excellence in English lexicography, but as the characteristic American book. It is better known and more widely circulated than any other. I have met with it at the Imperial Library in Paris, the Library of the University of Berlin, the Athenaeum and other London clubs, and numerous other places. I have heard of it from Turkey, India, China, and even Japan. It is everywhere devoutly applauded for the elegance of its type, the distinctness of its impression, the beauty of its engravings, and the vast amount of information condensed within its covers. To the great taste of Dr. Webster it is in its present state a noble and meritorious offering.
